

Atomic Finds ATX — Operating Model & Public Boundaries

Suggested finish-by: 2026-09-08 | Status: DRAFT

Audience: Jennyfer, owner of Atomic Finds ATX. Purpose: Confirm only the business decisions needed to keep the Phase 1 website accurate and usable.

Atomic Finds ATX's Phase 1 website is a curated showroom and selected-inventory preview. Facebook Marketplace remains the current live-listing and sales channel. The website may direct a buyer to an exact active Marketplace listing or a product-specific inquiry path.

- Write in warm, clear, plain English. No technical CMS, database, AI, design-system, or implementation questions are included here – just the business decisions that matter.

1. Confirm the Customer Flow

Confirm this default flow: Website → item-specific Marketplace listing or product-specific inquiry → Jennyfer confirms availability → Austin pickup by arrangement.

☐ Approved as written

☐ Revise

☐ Different preferred flow

If revising or different, please describe your preferred flow:

For an Available item, choose the preferred next step

- ☐ ☐ Exact, verified Facebook Marketplace listing
- ☐ ☐ Product-specific website inquiry
- ☐ ☐ Both, Marketplace first
- ☐ ☐ Both, inquiry first
- ☐ ☐ Other: _____

Status & Update Responsibilities

Who is responsible for changing an item's price, Available, Pending, Adopted, or removed status?

Primary owner

Backup owner, if any

Where should that update be recorded first?

☐ Inventory record

☐ CMS

☐ Message to Anthony / Digital Allies

☐ Other: _____

When an item sells or becomes pending, what is the realistic update expectation?

☐ Same day

☐ Within 24 hours

2. Public Pickup and Policy Boundaries

Confirm this approved pickup language:

"Austin pickup by arrangement. Message Jennyfer to confirm availability and coordinate pickup details."

☐ Approved as written

☐ Revise

Revised language:

Confirm the website should not state or imply any of the following

Unless Jennyfer supplies a written approved policy, the website should not state or imply any of the following. Please confirm or add a boundary:

- ☐ Delivery or white-glove delivery
- ☐ Pickup address or precise pickup location
- ☐ Public hours
- ☐ Deposits, holds, payment plans, refunds, returns, or exchanges
- ☐ Phone number or alternate contact method
- ☐ Mover recommendations or moving-service promises
- ☐ Blanket "fully restored" or "professionally restored" claims
- ☐ Ratings, testimonials, or "Verified Buyer" claims without source evidence

☐ Confirmed

☐ Add a boundary:

"Is there anything Atomic Finds ATX should never say, imply, or promise publicly?"

Please use the space below to share anything that should be off-limits for the website – words, claims, promises, or implications you'd never want a customer to see.

3. Public Contact and Website Readiness

Is the product-specific inquiry form ready to route messages to a monitored destination?

☐ Yes; destination:

☐ Needs testing

☐ Not yet; hide/defer item inquiry CTA until ready

Is the public email atomicfindsatx@gmail.com approved for public use?

☐ Yes

☐ No

☐ Not decided

Newsletter Readiness

Is the newsletter ready to publish with a real email connection, consent language, privacy-policy link, success/error states, a defined list, and a basic welcome/confirmation?

☐ Yes

☐ No; use social-follow CTA instead

☐ Later

☐ Anything not decided will remain internal or neutral until confirmed. No customer-facing claim should be guessed.
